Further Education needs a home

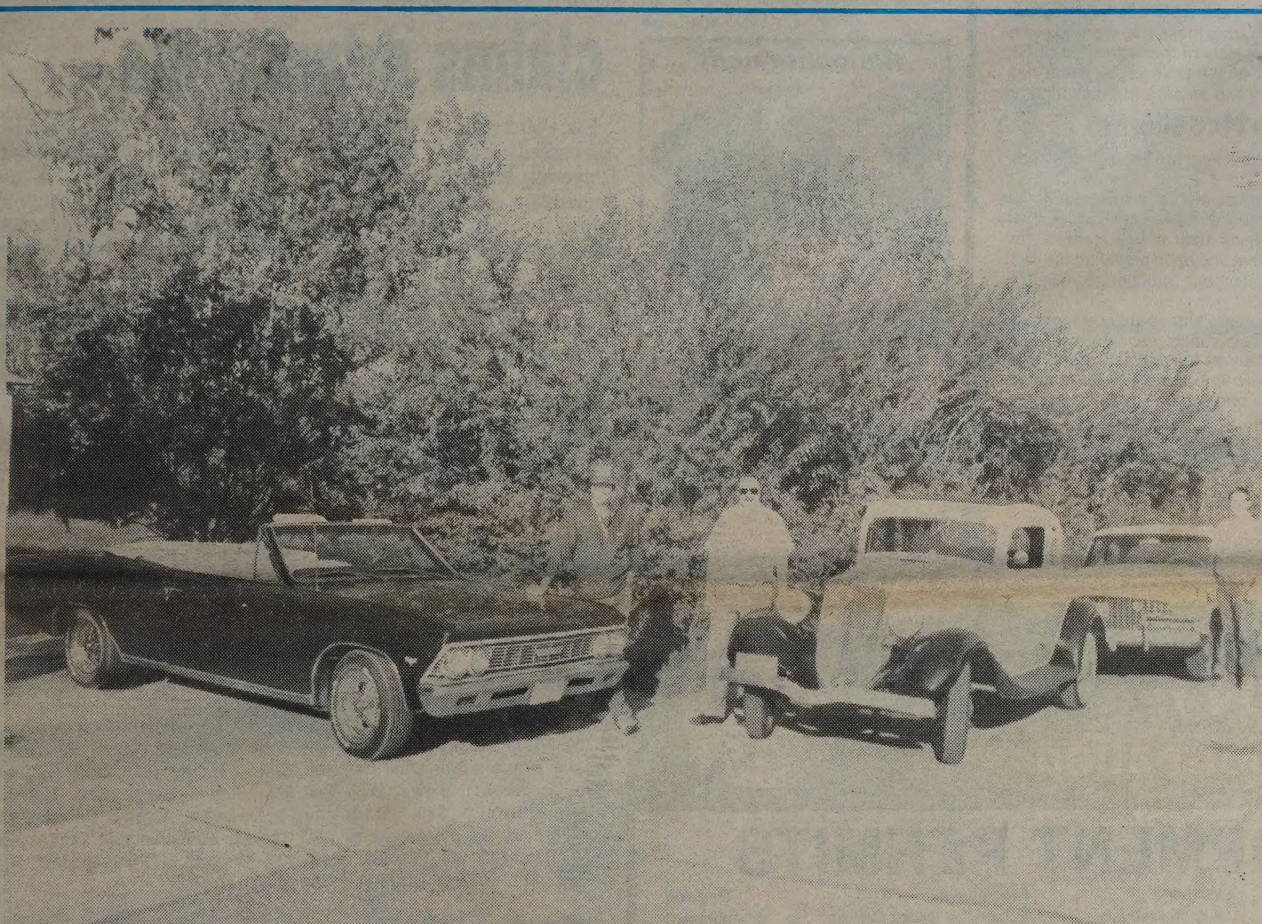

The need for a suitable location for classes and office space for fall and winter was high on the agenda when the Elk Point and District Further Education Council met Thursday night to plan the year's operations.

Further Ed was one of the tenants of the Community Services Centre whose space was preempted for an elementary grade classroom, during renovations at the Elk Point Elementary School. Discussion revealed that, while it would be possible to use a variety of temporary spaces around Elk Point for the various classes, for some classes, such as oil painting, a permanent and undisturbed location would be much more feasible. Several locations have been looked into, but rents are far in excess of the $287 per quarter the Council has been paying for a classroom and office in the CSC Building.

It was suggested that a new location on a permanent basis would give the Council the new identity and new image it has been seeking, but no solution to the massive increase in rental cost this could entail was forthcoming. The Council's finance committee was recruited to deal with the matter, and to bring their recommendation back to a special meeting as soon as possible, so the programs can get underway.

A variety of interesting courses are on the fall calendar, now being prepared by Coordinator Gladys Drobot, for the areas of Elk Point, Heinsburg and Spuitnow. Everything from the perennial favorite, aerobics, and Christmas crafts, to typing, watercolor painting and Yoga, are on the list. Several new additions include speed reading and writing, leadership training, study skills, sewing machine maintenance, and introduction to needlecrafts.

A slight increase in fees was agreed on, to $1 per hour for basic

CLASSY CLASSICS—such as Glenn Harms' 1966 Chevelle convertible, Larry Demchuk's 1933 V8 Ford coupe and Michael O'Neill's 1956 Studebaker, will be on display Saturday, when Elk Point and District Agricultural Society hosts Car Show '88 in the A. G. Ross Arena. The show, which goes from 11:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., and is open to all types of show, antique and collector cars, was originally scheduled for Fair weekend in August, but was rained out. This time, with a new indoor location, the event goes rain or shine.

No more warnings for school zone speeders

'The time for warnings has come to an end' for speed and crosswalk infractions in the 51 Street school zone, says Elk Point RCMP Sgt. Bruce Best, following two incidents in which individuals crossing between Elk Point Elementary School and F. G. Miller High School were nearly hit by motorists.

Uncourteous drivers not yielding to pedestrians in the crosswalks and an unnecessarily high volume of traffic in the area are adding up to a dangerous situation for students and school staff alike, and the RCMP is prepared to prosecute those who do not obey speed and crosswalk laws.

Due to the renovations at the Elementary School, more students are crossing the street to get to their classes, also there are no school patrols at this time because of students being housed in three separate locations. 'It just wouldn't work' because students are crossing at numerous times of the day, rather than just before and after school and at noon hour, Elementary Principal Don Conrad says. Instead, a teacher accompanies the groups at these times.

Conrad feels there is 'a lot of unnecessary stunting' such as people driving aimlessly back and forth through the area, more than has previously been noted.

F. G. Miller Principal Jim Hawkins agrees that the traffic is too heavy and 'often too fast,' and has advised the older students who drive to school to avoid the area if at all possible. Hawkins noted that 'even after school hours, there are lots of people' in the area, due to sporting events and other extracurricular activities, and this will increase even further when activity at the arena gets underway for the winter months.

Sgt. Best says that the people travelling unnecessarily up and down 'aren't all school kids. There are many others just cruising through the area after school and at noon hour' which have contributed to the number of complaints his detachment has received.

A variety of ways to cope with the problem have been discussed, including the installation of speed bumps, the implementation of one-way traffic, and even closing the street off completely. Town Administrator Pat Vincent says the latter is 'possibly too drastic a response, but do we wait until someone gets hurt?'

The entire community is being urged to help out with the problem,

Education told the group that this is still, by far, the lowest fee being charged by a Further Education Council in the province. It was noted that courses in St. Paul and Bonnyville cost double this amount, while many rural councils are charging up to $5 per instruction hour.

Saville said that a further increase over time is needed to get the fee total equal to the program grant provided by the Province, which is the appropriate ratio for successful operation. He said that Elk Point's fees were 'still at the 1977 level' and must be increased to avoid 'dire financial straits.'

The Council welcomed new Town Council representative Marshall Kachmar to the midst. Kachmar will be replacing Mayor Byron Mann, who previously served on the Further Education Council.

Further Ed's policy and procedures will be getting revamping, with a new committee struck to go over the long-standing rules and regulations, and to report back in November.

both by slowing down, stopping for pedestrians at the crosswalks and avoiding the area when possible, and by reporting the licence numbers of those who are not yielding the right of way to pedestrians, to the RCMP.

Elk Point's trustee on the County of St. Paul School Board, Janice Van Maaron, says that the problem is greater now than it has ever been, because of the physical volume of children crossing the street due to the construction. 'Our concern is the safety of these children, and we are hoping the public will hear our plea.'

Elk Point Light Horse Association hosts show

By Myrna Golden

Well, we certainly couldn't complain about the weather for our fun Horse Show. After being rained out on our first attempt, we had a beautiful day for the second try on Sept. 5. We had a good attendance and participants and spectators both appeared to have enjoyed the show. It was a very laid back, relaxed atmosphere and a FUN show, which is what we had been trying for.

We had quite a few participants who are new to this kind of 'horsing around' and I think they found this informal kind of show a good way to get their feet wet. Our club hopes everyone enjoyed themselves and maybe with a little luck we can repeat the success next year.

The club would also like to express our sincere appreciation to the many generous donors who supported this show, it makes the financial load a lot lighter. The following is a list of sponsorship (in brackets) and prize winners:

School zones should spell safety

Let's clean up our act, here.

Obviously, some people weren't paying attention to our yearly back to school pitch for safe driving in the school zones. There has been a lot of cruising through the area, some people going too fast, and a lot not stopping to let those kids cross the street.

That's not only discourteous, it's not safe.

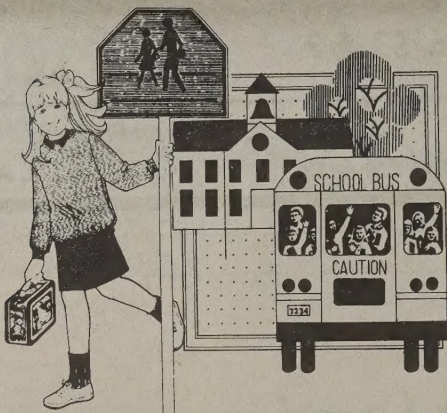

With the Elementary School in an upheaval, there are considerably more children than usual crossing over to F. G. Miller to go to and from various classes, not just during the usual hours, but at all times of the school day. Of course, it's a nuisance to take your foot off the gas pedal and put it on the brake, especially when you're in a hurry to get somewhere. But it will take you a lot longer if you have to explain to the RCMP who stops you, why you are in such a rush you can't let someone cross the street safely. It will take you even longer to tell it to the judge.

And what if you hit someone? How would you feel if you had to explain to the parents of some slaughtered six-year-old that you were in just too big a hurry to slow down and let their kid live?

Those are our community's kids, our hope for the future crossing that street, and you can bet your drivers' licence that we are all going to be on the lookout for people whose driving habits put them in danger. We want them to grow up, even if there are people out there who could care less.

Come on—give the kids a break. Slow down, and keep them safe on their way to school.

LISTENING IN—Benne Berg and Kenny Nixon try out the new headphones for Elk Point Public Library's tape player, which were presented by Lioness Club representative Charlene Nixon to Librarian Doreen Mayner just in time for story hour last Friday. The library has a number of book and cassette sets which are much enjoyed by the youngest library members.

Alberta Trails

Trails far from Alberta

By Irene Magnusson

So many things seen in these first few days! What can I choose to tell you of? Ontario, as it surrounds Ottawa, is a most pleasant area to see. There are so many varied views.

When we take our daily 'walk around the block', we pass tall two- and three-storeyed homes, set back from the street, with tall trees around. There are pines and maples, beech and oak, the trees native to the area. Among them are birch, poplars, sumac, alders, crabapple trees and many others I can't identify. Here and there a branch—or a tree—has fallen ripe, and leaves have turned orange or scarlet, the splash of color vivid and startling.

There seems to be no ditch, ugly and muddy, but rather the roadsides are sloped down and rounded. Where there is a home on the lot, the grass is mowed (out to the pavement), and all between the trees, giving a decidedly park-like appearance. Flowers gleam brightly, despite it being fall, along the houses, walks and in beds.

Where the lots are still undeveloped and wooded, the trees grow thickly. Below are fallen branches, ferns and vines, a deep dark place, luring me to step into its shade. This is the home of long black squirrels, which have very long bushy tails. They seem to spend more time on the lawns than in the trees, and may be seen scurrying about in these woods.

Wildflowers, at this late date, are mostly goldenrod, thick and tall, a few blue asters, lots of tiny white asters, smallish sunflowers—or cone-flowers—here and there, and a pink spear of bloom I haven't identified yet. Down by the Rideau Canal, which runs by the west end of the 'block', touch-me-nots abound, orange and yellow hooded blooms, and just now starting to have seed pods long enough and ripe enough to send their startling shower of seeds as they split and curl at a touch. This area, where my son and his wife live, is a suburb of Manotick, which is a smallish town about 15 miles south of Ottawa city. Each lot has its own well and septic system, as we do out in the country in Alberta. His is quite a new home, they have only been here a little over a year, so there is development to be done on the large lot. The house, itself, is perfect, as far as I can see, two-storey, with full basement, tall trees, a beautiful place.

Each day, since arriving, I've been exposed to new sights, museums, parks, galleries, shopping centres, on and on. Today we will tour the Rideau Canal in Dennis' boat. It's a gorgeous sun-filled day, just right for water travel. I must now get ready, and will certainly have photos to record some of the sights. I've already gone through three rolls, some must surely turn out well!

I'm hoping the harvest around home is going well. Here I see huge fields of corn, still standing. I don't know what else they grow—but will find out. See you soon!

WHAT'S NEWS at the Library

Storytime, Friday mornings at 10:30 is still continuing. The preschoolers that attended on Friday thoroughly enjoyed the puppet show 'Hello Kitty's Paper Kiss.' So mothers and fathers, if you haven't joined us yet, please bring your children in for half an hour of stories and fun-filled activities.

We are now asking willing patrons to fill out a form called 'Rate a Book.' They are to read a new book and tell us how they liked or disliked it. Each patron's name will then be put into a draw. Someone could win a new book!

Don't forget the third anniversary book mark contest. It's open to everyone. Pick up your entry forms at the library. Entry deadline is Sept. 28, 1988. Come in and join the fun!

NEW BOOKS Fiction, Adult

Spangle by Gary Jennings--The author has outdone himself in this rich and eventful novel about the adventures of a nineteenth-century circus troupe.

Dream Train by Charlotte Allen--the mystique of the renowned Orient Express combines with the drama of strangers who meet on a train to make Charlotte Allen's Dream Train one of her most appealing and engrossing novels to date.

Non-Fiction, Adult

Battered But Not Beaten by Linda MacLeod--A book of wife battering and places for them to seek help and advice, also has program information.

Microwave Diet Cookery by Marcia Cone and Thelma Snyder--Recipes for the microwave with illustrations.

Facing Death by Billy Graham--In this book, Billy Graham calls upon us to confront the sobering fact of death--realistically; but always with the confidence that through our relationship with Christ we can conquer this final enemy.

LIONS DROP OPENING GAME--The St. Paul Lions were defeated by the Lloydminster Barons 41-3 in Lloydminster. However, it is only fair to note the Lions didn't play as badly as the score would indicate.

Lions lose season openers

By Verhomme Thompson
Staff Writer

The St. Paul Lions opened up their 1988 football season under new head coach Kevin Jennings and were defeated 41-3 by hometown Lloydminster Barons a week from last Tuesday.

On the opening kick-off the Lions kick-off return team failed to do the trick as the offence came onto the field deep in their own end.

The first play of the game Kevin Bates handed the ball off to Shane Kossy who fumbled the ball with the Barons recovering.

"That was a bad coaching call, I sent in a play from the bench and I wanted to get him loosened up fast, get him into the game quick, because he was very nervous. Still he corrected himself, he didn't do that again. Still it would have been smarter to send it to a more experienced back.

Jennings added that Kossy turned in a strong performance after he got over his jitters.

"Once he settled down, we turned in one hell of a running game. Our running game, I'm very impressed with. We were averaging five or six yards a carry.

From there things went from bad to worse as the Lion defenders picked up three straight offside calls with the ball eventually being spotted at the seven yard line.

The Barons ran one running play and scored a touchdown.

Despite the score Jennings maintained his team didn't play that poorly. However, he also stated his team didn't capitalize on some of their opportunities. That aspect of the game was chalked up to the inexperience of several of his players, many of whom had never played in a competitive football game before.

It would only be fair to note the Lions only fielded 24 players for the game. The usual number a football team carries is around 40 players. Being short-staffed was one of the reasons why the Lions lost this game.

"We started wearing down in the second half, there was a question of numbers there, I'm not going to complain about it. But there was 10 guys playing both ways and they started wearing down."

Jennings also noted his team had a few breaks go against them which didn't help matters too much.

"We got some bad breaks and they (Barons) capitalized on every one of them, you have to give them full credit for that."

With some of the breaks going against the team did Jennings see anything positive come out of the game?

"Absolutely, our defence was doing well until they started wearing out. They played one hell of a good game once they started getting the hang of it."

On the other hand Jennings wants to see more point production from his offence. He also felt his linemen were doing a pretty good job in the trenches until they started to wear down late in the game. For the most part the Barons couldn't pull off any running plays up the middle.

"10 guys playing both ways is tough. I think they came through damn good because they went both ways, especially the linemen. The receivers they were losing their legs at the end of the game. They couldn't complete their patterns and they were being covered closely as a result of it.

Our quarterback was getting the ball there, he looked pretty good. So it was a learning experience for all of us.

Royals 13 - Lions 7

The St. Paul Regional Lions seasonal record fell to 0-2 after they were defeated by the Grand Centre Royals last Saturday in Grand Centre.

The team didn't get off to a good start after they were forced to dress in a room where the team coaching staff claimed urethane permeated the air. Lions' head coach Kevin Jennings was outraged at that gesture as some of his players developed headaches and another one threw up just before they were to take the field against the Royals.

Although Grand Centre won the game by a 13-7 margin the game ended amidst some controversy as the Lions ran out of time as they were marching down the field in the fourth quarter.

According to members of the Lions coaching staff they figured they had roughly eight seconds to complete two plays. Prior to that they made sure their players went out of bounds after running or catching the football.

Receiver Gordon Brown caught a 15-yard pass from Kevin Bates and stepped out of bounds. At that point the Lions' coaching staff figured they had at least four seconds to complete one more play. Their next, and final, play of the game was supposed to have been a long bomb pass into the endzone.

However that never materialized as the timekeeper announced that time had run out. Assistant coach Craig Brodziaak approached the officials on the field and queried if the time count was right. The officials said the game was over.

Last year Bonnyville coach Brian Walsh pulled his team off the field against Grand Centre for what could be called 'officiating irregularities.' As well there were some discrepancies when the Lions played the Royals last year.

"The main thing we did wrong was that we didn't score when we had the opportunities. When we were in deep we didn't come away with points. We've got a team that we know can do it. All we have to do is put it all together," Jennings politely stated.

Clandonald news

By Shirley Osinchuk

We have lost three pioneer ladies, whose families live in our area, in the last few weeks. Mrs. Effie Allen lived to be 97 years old, and died on Aug. 3. She had lived in the Dewberry area for 78 years.

Mrs. Marie Ritt, of Dewberry, had lived in the Dewberry area for 58 years before she died on Aug. 23, at the age of 82.

Mrs. Elsie Bauman died at 93 years of age on August 19. She had lived in the Landonville district, and then in Vermilion since 1921.

We express our sympathy to the families of these ladies, and also our appreciation for their lives and contributions to our communities.

Wedding bells were ringing on many weekends this summer. Congratulations to Dennis Martin and Caroline Cruthers, Dennis McCormack and Margaret Webb, Donna Goldsmith and Richard Niedzielski, Denise Bowman and Blair Eyben, Kevin Maddex and Twila Cook, Bob Wilson and Linda Veroba, and Arnell Hines and Morley Dennill.

On Sept. 5, Gary Etherington entertained the customers of his Northern Veterinary Services in Dewberry, to supper in the Dewberry Hall, to celebrate the first year of business. After a delicious beef supper, Pete Knight DVM spoke on cow herd management, particularly the necessity of vaccinating for diseases now common in the cattle industry. He was available all evening for more questions and discussion.

Gary Etherington spoke briefly on his plans to expand service by stocking feeds, and by a herd management proposal. He could work with forty producers, planning feed rations, working toward higher weight gains and fewer animal losses, in cooperation with the farmer.

The rest of the evening was spent in competition between six tug of war teams, with a maximum 900 pounds weight. There were two ladies' teams, and six men's. After the first few pulls, the approach became more scientific, synchronized heaving, and bare feet gripping the tiled floor.

The teams had been auctioned before the pulls, with the 'owners' of the two winning teams and the Dewberry Curling Club sharing the total pot. The men's No Names were the first place winners, but some people still think that the girls won that first pull.

Elzinga announces funding for drought program

Agriculture Minister Peter Elzinga has announced that Cabinet has approved funding for the Alberta Drought Assistance Program, announced earlier this summer. Cabinet approval was received for the expenditure of $19.3 million in the first year of the program, 1988-89.

During the next two years, the Alberta Government will contribute a total of $31.5 million to the joint federal-provincial cost-sharing initiative. In all, the program will provide a total of $63 million in assistance to Alberta livestock producers.

Mr. Elzinga stated, "This cooperative effort on the part of the federal and provincial governments was developed in response to drought conditions experienced this past spring, which placed Alberta's stock of breeding animals at risk. I am confident the program will help ensure a strong future for our livestock industry."

The program contains two components. Under the livestock assistance component of the program, assistance payments will be made to producers in areas hardest hit by drought. Producer eligibility will be based upon Forage Insurance Program data.

Payments to a maximum of $60 per head of breeding cattle will be paid to cattle owners, and equivalent amounts will be paid to livestock producers for sheep, goats, horses and bison. These payments are aimed at helping maintain breeding stock in the province.

The payments will be made in two stages. An initial payment of two-thirds the full amount of assistance to be granted will be made to farmers on the basis of their breeding herd inventories as of July 1, 1988. Producers will receive a final payment, the remaining third based on their April 1, 1989 breeding herd inventories.

Under the second part of the program, the greenfeed assistance component, producers will receive a grant of $15 per acre for crops planted between June 21 and July 31, 1988 for use as hay, silage or pasture. This greenfeed assistance is aimed at encouraging greater production of forage, to meet any shortfall caused by this spring's drought. In addition, the assistance measure is designed to encourage the implementation of soil conservation measures. Such measures have become essential in light of the damage caused by drought conditions.

The greenfeed assistance component of the program has already completed the acceptance of applications, and farmers who applied under the program will receive payments early in September. Approximately 3,000 applications were received for greenfeed assistance on about 470,000 acres of land, for an estimated payout of some $7 million.

Further information about the Alberta Drought Assistance Program and application forms for the livestock assistance component of the program will be available in early September from district agriculture offices and local offices of the Alberta Hail and Crop Insurance Corporation.

Free trade agreement - The myths and the reality

By Don Mazankowski, M.P.
Report From Parliament Hill

Much has been said and written about the Canada-United States Free Trade Agreement over the past few months. Unfortunately this debate has generated more heat than light, and many myths have been created by those opposed to the agreement, leading to confusion as to precisely what it contains. I would like to take this opportunity to deal with some of these misconceptions.

The opposition parties have claimed that free trade has not been adequately examined and Canadians have not had an opportunity to respond to it. The fact is the path leading to this historic agreement has been a long one. In 1982 the Senate Standing Committee on Foreign Affairs released the third volume of its report entitled Canada's Trade Relations With The United States, recommending that Canada pursue bilateral free trade with the U.S. The Committee's chairman was Senator George Van Roggen, who recently resigned this position in opposition to Mr. Turner's order that Liberal Senators block further consideration of the agreement.

In 1982 Prime Minister Trudeau established the Royal Commission on the Economic Union and Development Prospects for Canada, headed by former Liberal Cabinet Minister the Honourable Donald MacDonald. The Commission was tasked with examining the state of the nation's economy and making recommendations as to how it might best be improved. After examining 1,513 written submissions and holding hearings in 32 cities in all the provinces and both territories, the Commission reported to Prime Minister Mulroney in August 1985. It strongly recommended that Canada pursue a free trade agreement with the United States as the best means of ensuring continued prosperity and combatting regional disparities.

Another claim widely made is that Canada's sovereignty is threatened because the agreement is unchangeable and will bind future generations to its terms. This is nonsense. The agreement itself calls for the creation of a Canada-United States trade Commission, composed of equal representatives of both countries to resolve difficulties which may arise from the operation of the agreement. In addition, changes to the agreement can be made if both nations want them. Ultimately either party can withdraw from the treaty after six months notice, as has been recognized by both Mr. Turner and Mr. Broadbent who have promised to use this clause to "tear up" the agreement.

On his recent trip through the Maritimes Mr. Turner tried to frighten Canadians with claims that Medicare and other social programs will be threatened. Mr. Turner has darkly suggested that once the agreement is in place the U.S. will try to attack Medicare as a subsidy to Canadian industry. This argument betrays an ignorance of what subsidies are internationally recognized as being. As the Winnipeg Free Press noted "No case can be made however for describing social programs of general application, such as medicare, as subsidies". The Halifax Chronicle-Herald made the same point, "that Medicare passes the standard test for subsidies used here, in the U.S. and by GATT in general. That is, there is no subsidy when a program is generally available - and Medicare is universally available".

The falseness of the claims that the FTA threatens social programs can also be seen by looking at our history. Since 1935 Canada has removed 72 per cent of the tariffs on U.S. goods coming into the country. It is over this same period that our social programs have been developed. Tariff removal in the past did not prevent us from creating policies and programs to meet the needs of Canadians. Why should it now?

Mr. Turner has made other statements about the Free Trade Agreement that do not hold up. He has alleged that the access provisions of the agreement will lead to Canada's resources, including water and energy, being "swept into a continental reservoir with the United States."

The actual wording of this clause is that neither country can "reduce the proportion of the export shipments of any specific good made available to the other party relative to the total supply of the good to the party ... prevailing in the most recent 36-month period." In other words, both countries agree to share what is available on the same percentage basis as was the case before the shortfall.

As the Halifax Chronicle-Herald recognized "this is really a clause preventing either country from kicking its neighbor when it's down. For instance, if Canada is shipping 30 per cent of crude production to the U.S., and a shortage arises, we cannot suddenly say, "Sorry, guys, you only get three per cent now". Nor can the U.S. come up and grab as much oil as it likes."

This sort of international agreement is not new. The previous Liberal government signed an International Energy Agreement in which Canada made a similar commitment to our Western Allies following the 1973 Oil Embargo.

Perhaps the strangest allegation made by the opponents of the agreement is that it threatens Canada's water supply. This is supposedly based on the fact that water is mentioned in one of the tariff schedules as a commodity under the agreement. This entry refers to bottled water, which is indeed exported. As previously noted, the "access provisions" of the agreement only apply to goods as exported over the previous three years. Canada does not divert large volumes of water to the United States, and so cannot be required to do so under the agreement.

I would note that the only federal party Leader on record in favor of such diversions is Mr. Turner himself. In 1965 he suggested to an American audience that "if someday we can agree to the sharing of this continent's water by offering some of our water for export, we might want at that time to insist that if water is to be considered as a continental resource, markets should also be considered on the same basis. We might wish to export water not for money, but in return for access to your markets". Mr. Turner is the threat to our nation's water supply, not the FTA. As the Winnipeg Free Press cautioned, he might well consider a new slogan for himself: "Tell the people the truth."

I would like to conclude with the remarks of a fellow Western Canadian, who has studied Canada-U.S. trade in great detail over many years. Liberal Senator George Van Roggen has said "The FTA is a very reasonable deal and a great improvement over the existing arrangements for cross border trade, and it will bring substantial benefits to Canada ... It would be a tragedy if the opportunity were lost."

In subsequent articles I will examine the benefits the FTA holds for Alberta and the West, and its specific impacts upon agriculture and energy.

Advisory committee issues statement

The elected Producer Advisory Committee to the Canadian Wheat Board has issued a statement regarding the Free Trade Agreement and proposed changes to the Canadian Wheat Board and Canada Grains Act.

At a meeting held in Winnipeg on July 28, the majority of the 11 member committee agreed to the following resolutions:

1. After careful review of the proposed bilateral Canada-U.S. Trade Agreement, including Chapter 7 of the United States "Statement of Administrative Action", The Advisory Committee considers the proposed Free Trade Agreement will:

(a) undermine the ability of the Canadian Wheat Board to be an effective marketing agent on behalf of Canadian grain producers,

(b) create an environment in which it will be increasingly difficult to maintain the quality and uniformity of Canadian grains,

(c) and, not provide enhanced and secure access to the U.S. market.

Therefore, the Advisory Committee recommends to the Prime Minister, the Minister of State, Grains and Oilseeds, and the Canadian Wheat Board that the total grain industry be exempt from the Free Trade Agreement.

2. The Advisory Committee supports the amendment to the Canada Grains Act which would provide up to a seven year term for Commissioners of the Canadian Grain Commission. The Committee is very emphatic that appointments to the Canadian Grain Commission should be made on the basis of a nominee's ability and knowledge of the grain industry.

3. The Advisory Committee recommends to the Minister of State, Grains and Oilseeds, and the Canadian Wheat Board that Clause 8 of Bill C-92 (dealing with producer car adjustment payments for Canadian Wheat Board carrying charges) be deleted from the proposed amendments and that Bill C-92 then be passed. The Committee also immediately requests to appear before the Senate Committee investigating Bill C-92.
